Entry Pathway Interpretation Project – Munmorah State Conservation Area

The National Parks and Wildlife Service (NPWS), within the Office of Environment and Heritage, Department of Premier and Cabinet, sort tenders for the construction and installation of six interpretative steel structures along the entry pathway to the Lakes Area Office in Munmorah State Conservation Area. Central Signs were awarded the contract.

Central Signs undertook the project in a highly professional manner and followed the technical and engineering drawings supplied with the contract, only deviating from these after consultation with NPWS, to introduce improvements to the final product.

Central Signs continuously liaised with NPWS staff throughout the project which was completed in a timely manner. Their attention to detail and quality of the work was of high standard.

The NPWS is extremely happy with the finished project and the project management undertaken by Central Signs. We would happily recommend their services.

Yours sincerely
